NO. J11-00829 / ID. 1180739
From December 2011 to August 2012
Phases in Japan: From January 10, 2012 to February 11, 2012

This information pertains to one of the Training and Dialogue Programs of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), which shall be implemented as part of the Official Development Assistance of the Government of Japan based on bilateral agreement between both Governments.
I. Concept

Background
Polio (Poliomyelitis) was rampant worldwide when the Global Polio Eradication initiative was launched by WHO in 1988. After that, countermeasures using effective oral polio vaccines such as mass immunization of polio vaccines had been promoted. As a result, countries in WHO Western Pacific Region were certified as polio-free in 2000. Now polio endemic countries and areas where indigenous wild poliovirus was detected are limited to India, Pakistan, Afghanistan, and Nigeria. However, Global Polio Eradication Initiative is behind the schedule due to various reasons including importation of wild poliovirus from endemic countries to countries where polio was once eliminated and the emergence of vaccine-derived poliovirus (VDPV). Under these circumstances, the importance of laboratory diagnosis like identification of wild poliovirus, imported strain, and VDPV is increasing more than ever in addition to the continuous laboratory diagnosis of viruses found in acute flaccid paralysis cases.

Furthermore, WHO resolved "Global Immunization Strategy (WHA58.15)" for vaccine preventable diseases related to MDGs goal 4 (Reduce child mortality) and goal 6 (Combat HIV/AIDS, Malaria and other diseases). WHO/WPRO is proceeding Measles Elimination Plan aimed to Measles Elimination by 2012. It is indispensable to ensure appropriate surveillance and quality laboratory diagnosis to judge effects of vaccine for the control of vaccine preventable diseases.

With these situations into consideration, the purpose of this course is set to acquire the standardized technique of laboratory diagnosis of vaccine preventable diseases, including poliomyelitis and measles and to improve WHO National Laboratories for vaccine preventable diseases in the participating countries.

For what?
This program aims to improve laboratory diagnosis technique related to vaccine preventable diseases, including polio and measles/rubella.

For whom?
This program is offered to National Laboratory under the WHO laboratory network related to vaccine preventable diseases such as polio and measles/rubella.

How?
Participants shall have opportunities in Japan to acquire the standard technique of cell culture, standard technique of isolation and identification of poliovirus and measles, introduction to molecular epidemiology using polioviruses, and information on the outline of Global Polio Eradication Program/Measles Elimination Program. It is also envisioned that the program would serve the cause of mutual collaboration among participating countries and Japan in knowledge sharing.

JICA and Capacity Development

The key concept underpinning JICA operations since its establishment in 1974 has been the conviction that “capacity development” is central to the socioeconomic development of any country, regardless of the specific operational scheme one may be undertaking, i.e. expert assignments, development projects, development study projects, training programs, JOCV programs, etc.

Within this wide range of programs, Training Programs have long occupied an important place in JICA operations. Conducted in Japan, they provide partner countries with opportunities to acquire practical knowledge accumulated in Japanese society. Participants dispatched by partner countries might find useful knowledge and re-create their own knowledge for enhancement of their own capacity or that of the organization and society to which they belong.

About 460 pre-organized programs cover a wide range of professional fields, ranging from education, health, infrastructure, energy, trade and finance, to agriculture, rural development, gender mainstreaming, and environmental protection. A variety of programs and are being customized to address the specific needs of different target organizations, such as policy-making organizations, service provision organizations, as well as research and academic institutions. Some programs are organized to target a certain group of countries with similar developmental challenges.

Japanese Development Experience

Japan was the first non-Western country to successfully modernize its society and industrialize its economy. At the core of this process, which started more than 140 years ago, was the “adapt and adopt” concept by which a wide range of appropriate skills and knowledge have been imported from developed countries; these skills and knowledge have been adapted and/or improved using local skills, knowledge and initiatives. They finally became internalized in Japanese society to suit its local needs and conditions.

From engineering technology to production management methods, most of the know-how that has enabled Japan to become what it is today has emanated from this “adoption and adaptation” process, which, of course, has been accompanied by countless failures and errors behind the success stories. We presume that such experiences, both successful and unsuccessful, will be useful to our partners who are trying to address the challenges currently faced by developing countries.

However, it is rather challenging to share with our partners this whole body of Japan’s developmental experience. This difficulty has to do, in part, with the challenge of explaining a body of “tacit knowledge,” a type of knowledge that cannot fully be expressed in words or numbers. Adding to this difficulty are the social and cultural systems of Japan that vastly differ from those of other Western industrialized countries, and hence still remain unfamiliar to many partner countries. Simply stated, coming to Japan might be one way of overcoming such a cultural gap.

JICA, therefore, would like to invite as many leaders of partner countries as possible to come and visit us, to mingle with the Japanese people, and witness the advantages as well as the disadvantages of Japanese systems, so that integration of their findings might help them reach their developmental objectives.
