DRR (Disaster Risk Reduction) STRATEGY FOR URBAN EARTHQUAKE(A)
集団研修「都市地震災害軽減のための総合戦略(A)」
JFY 2011
<Type: Solution Creation / 類型:課題解決促進型>
NO. J11-00635/ ID. 1180892
From Apr. 2011 to Dec. 2011
Phase in Japan: From May 8, 2011 to June 30, 2011

This information pertains to one of the Training and Dialogue Programs of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), which shall be implemented as part of the Official Development Assistance of the Government of Japan based on bilateral agreement between both Governments.
I. Concept

Background
On January 17th, 1995, the Great Hanshin-Awaji Earthquake shook violently Kobe and nearby cities resulting in losses of more than 6000 lives and property damage of over 10 trillion yen (US$ 100 billion). These urban cities have revived from this immense tragedy over the past 16 years by learning the complexity of urban recovery processes and building better earthquake prepared urban environments. The lessons learnt from the past disasters and the future strategies for disaster reduction were encapsulated in the Hyogo Framework for Action 2005 – 2015 (HFA) which was announced at the United Nations World Conference on Disaster Reduction (UNWCDR) organized in Kobe in January 2005. The HFA strongly calls for the pro-active measures for disaster risk reduction (DRR) and the holistic and comprehensive approaches to integrate the efforts among all the stakeholders involved in DRR.

The course is designed to train and deliver the leaders of urban earthquake DRR by sharing the necessary knowledge and tools for the holistic and comprehensive strategies of seismic hazardous countries. To deal with the complex problems of urban earthquake disasters systematically, the course emphasizes the importance of knowledge and tools in three key components for the urban DRR strategies; namely, 1) Risk Assessment, 2) Risk Management and 3) Risk Communication.

For what?
The objective of the training is to learn the holistic and comprehensive DRR strategies for urban earthquakes in seismic hazardous countries. Upon the successful completion of the course, the participants are to elaborate action plans for urban earthquake DRR which would make the policies and programs more suitable and effective for their respective countries under the specific country situations.

For whom?
This program is offered to the public officers, technical specialists, researchers, engineers or medical staffs who presently engaged in practical service of urban earthquake DRR for large cities in seismic hazardous country.

How?
The knowledge & tools in three key components for the urban DRR strategy, namely 1) Risk Assessment, 2) Risk Management, and 3) Risk Communication will be taught. Upon completion of the training course work, the participants can take part in a collaboration program for urban DRR specialist which is supported by international organizations such as a consortium of universities and NGOs, and UN organizations such as International Strategy for Disaster Reduction (UN/ISDR).

JICA and Capacity Development

The key concept underpinning JICA operations since its establishment in 1974 has been the conviction that “capacity development” is central to the socioeconomic development of any country, regardless of the specific operational scheme one may be undertaking, i.e. expert assignments, development projects, development study projects, training programs, JOCV programs, etc.

Within this wide range of programs, Training Programs have long occupied an important place in JICA operations. Conducted in Japan, they provide partner countries with opportunities to acquire practical knowledge accumulated in Japanese society. Participants dispatched by partner countries might find useful knowledge and re-create their own knowledge for enhancement of their own capacity or that of the organization and society to which they belong.

About 460 pre-organized programs cover a wide range of professional fields, ranging from education, health, infrastructure, energy, trade and finance, to agriculture, rural development, gender mainstreaming, and environmental protection. A variety of programs and are being customized to address the specific needs of different target organizations, such as policy-making organizations, service provision organizations, as well as research and academic institutions. Some programs are organized to target a certain group of countries with similar developmental challenges.

Japanese Development Experience

Japan was the first non-Western country to successfully modernize its society and industrialize its economy. At the core of this process, which started more than 140 years ago, was the “adopt and adapt” concept by which a wide range of appropriate skills and knowledge have been imported from developed countries; these skills and knowledge have been adapted and/or improved using local skills, knowledge and initiatives. They finally became internalized in Japanese society to suit its local needs and conditions.

From engineering technology to production management methods, most of the know-how that has enabled Japan to become what it is today has emanated from this “adoption and adaptation” process, which, of course, has been accompanied by countless failures and errors behind the success stories. We presume that such experiences, both successful and unsuccessful, will be useful to our partners who are trying to address the challenges currently faced by developing countries.

However, it is rather challenging to share with our partners this whole body of Japan’s developmental experience. This difficulty has to do, in part, with the challenge of explaining a body of “tacit knowledge,” a type of knowledge that cannot fully be expressed in words or numbers. Adding to this difficulty are the social and cultural systems of Japan that vastly differ from those of other Western industrialized countries, and hence still remain unfamiliar to many partner countries. Simply stated, coming to Japan might be one way of overcoming such a cultural gap.

JICA, therefore, would like to invite as many leaders of partner countries as possible to come and visit us, to mingle with the Japanese people, and witness the advantages as well as the disadvantages of Japanese systems, so that integration of their findings might help them reach their developmental objectives.
